✿ NATURE ARCHIVE ASSET

At the heart of Green Asia Films is an extensive archive of Thai nature and wildlife footage accumulated over more than 20 years, documenting the country's forests, wildlife, ecosystems, and biodiversity.

This archive represents not only a valuable production asset, but also a long-term visual record of Thailand's natural heritage.

SYNOPSIS

Free Bird is a documentary series that follows a father and son from two different generations, separated by a 48-year age gap, as they embark on an extraordinary journey deep into the forests of Thailand.

Across 15 major mountain ranges and 9 types of forests, they set out to find 15 rare resident bird species, each associated with specific habitats and regions of Thailand, while encountering more than 60 additional bird species in their natural environments.

Across 15 episodes, the series explores the remarkable beauty and ecological richness of Thailand's diverse mountain landscapes and forests, revealing the intricate relationships between birds, wildlife, plants, and the fragile ecosystems they call home.

At the heart of this journey is a 62-year-old songwriter and lifelong lover of nature, whose life has been shaped by music and the natural world, and his 14-year-old son, who has been learning the art of birdwatching since the age of eight. As father and son venture deeper into the wilderness, their shared pursuit becomes an opportunity to discover not only the wonders of nature, but also the values that connect them across generations.

Through long hours of patient observation, nights spent in the forest, and a life accompanied by music inspired by nature, they discover that the most meaningful lessons are rarely found in books. Instead, they emerge through experience, understanding, and the quiet bond between father and son.

More than a journey to find rare birds, Free Bird is a cinematic exploration of nature, conservation, and the enduring power of intergenerational connection. It is a story about the wisdom, love, and values passed from father to son—and the freedom to discover what truly matters in life.

Intergenerational Transmission of Value and Meaning

Passing Values and Meaning from Father to Son Through the Classroom
of Nature

- Passing on the art of observation
- Cultivating patience in the wild
- Passing on a deep love for nature
- Passing on the songs of life

Fly High vs Fly Free Passing on the Spirit

Learning through a father’s thoughts and perspectives as he shares stories of life in the natural world.

A philosophy that challenges society’s conventional definition of success. To fly high may come with burdens and expectations, but to fly freely is the true essence of life.

“If I can’t fly high, But I can fly free”

Gentle Eco-Perspective

A child’s hope for a forest
that will still be here
when he grows as old
as his father is today.

✿ PRODUCTION & TECHNICAL CAPABILITIES

Professional Filmmaking, Field Production & Wildlife Documentation

✿ CINEMATIC REALISM

- Unscripted Real Moments
- High-Speed, Macro & Telephoto Cinematography
- Natural Lighting & Cinematic Color

✿ SOUNDSCAPE & ORIGINAL SCORE

• Nature Sound Integration

Authentic field recordings capture birdsong, wind, water, insects, and the ambient sounds of the forest. These elements are carefully integrated into the soundtrack to create an immersive sonic experience and place the audience within the natural environment.

✿ Original Score Composition

Original music is composed specifically for “Free Bird”, creating an emotional connection between the landscapes, wildlife, father-and-son relationship, and the journey itself.

✿ Theme Song — “FREE BIRD”

The original theme song explores the idea of true freedom and its meaning in life — expressed through the perspectives of two generations.

- Composed by Kanit Prukprakarn
- Performed by Kanit Prukprakarn & JD Ananta
